Having an x-ray

About this easy read booklet

This booklet is about having an x-ray.

You can learn about what will happen at the hospital when you go in for an x-ray.

If you are worried about your health, you should talk to a doctor or nurse.

Scans and x-rays

Scans and x-rays are ways of taking photos of the inside of the body. This helps the doctor check if everything is OK, or find out what is causing a health problem.

Scans and x-rays are done in hospital by people called radiographers.

Scans and x-rays do not hurt. Tell the doctor if you have any pain.

If you are pregnant some scans and x-rays can hurt the baby. So before you go for a scan you must tell the doctor if you think you might be pregnant.

Before you have the scan you might want to ask the radiographer, x-ray nurse or the person who gives you support to tell you what they are going to do.

You may also want to visit the hospital with the person who gives you support before you go for the scan. Then you will know what it is like.

Having an x-ray

X-rays are photos of the inside of your body. They let doctors see what may be wrong.

X-rays do not take long. The pictures can be seen straight away if needed.

X-rays do not hurt you.

Before or while you are having an x-ray you may be asked to have a special drink.

This shows up on the x-ray and helps the doctor to see where the problem is.

When you come for your x-ray you may be asked to take off your clothes and put on a hospital gown.

Then you will be asked to sit, stand or lie down for the x-ray to be taken. You may hear some clicks and noises during the x-ray.

You will have to keep still during the x-ray, just the same as when you have your photo taken.

The radiographer and the person who gives you support will have to leave the room during the x-ray.

They go into a small room with a glass window where they are protected from the x-rays but can still see you.

It doesn't take long to do the x-ray. Then you can get dressed again and go home.

It can take some time to get the results of your x-ray. It may take from 2 days to 3 weeks. Your doctor will tell you how long you may have to wait.

It can be worrying to wait for the results of medical tests. It may help to have someone to talk to while you are waiting. They can also support you when you get the results.
