Symptoms of prostate cancer

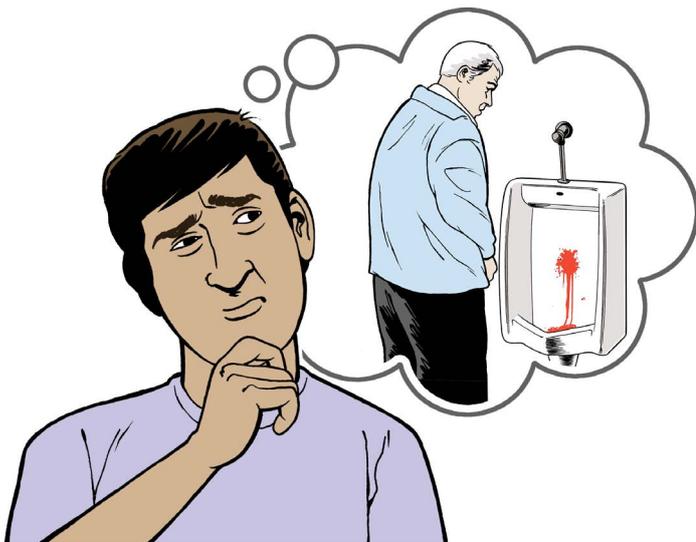

About this easy read booklet

This booklet is about symptoms of prostate cancer.

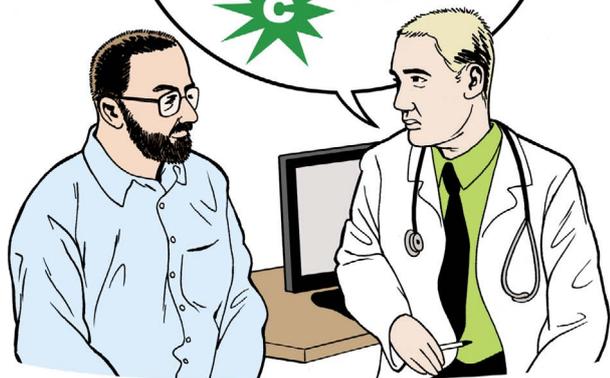

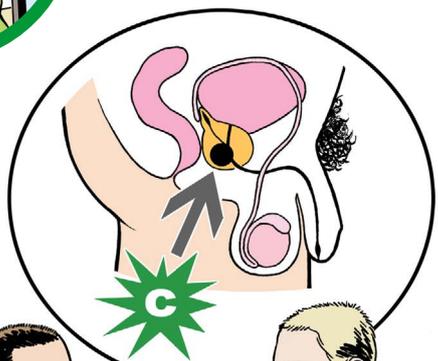

You can learn about symptoms of prostate cancer that need to be checked straight away.

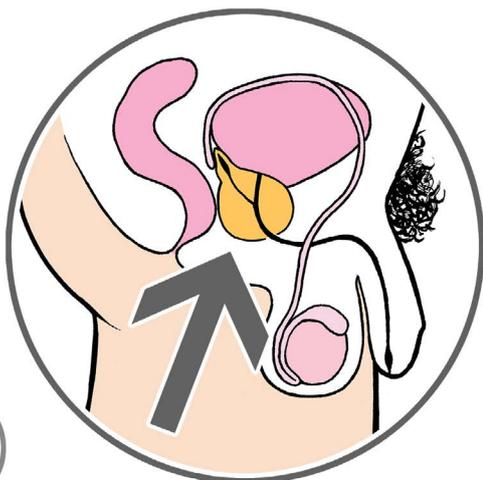

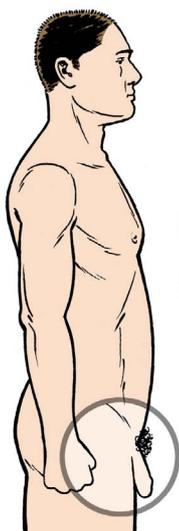

If you are worried about your health, you should talk to a doctor or nurse.

Symptoms of prostate cancer

Prostate cancer is the most common cancer in men.

The prostate is inside your body, next to your bladder.

Your bladder is the place where your pee is stored.

The prostate makes semen. This is the liquid that comes out of your penis when you have sex or masturbate.

Prostate cancer is more likely to affect men over 50.

Black men are more likely to get prostate cancer than white or Asian men. Black men are also more likely to get prostate cancer at a younger age.

As men get older, the prostate gets bigger and can cause symptoms.

Symptoms are signs in your body that tell you something is wrong, like feeling tired all the time.

Some of the more common symptoms of prostate cancer are:

- needing to pee more often, mainly at night

- finding it hard to start or stop peeing

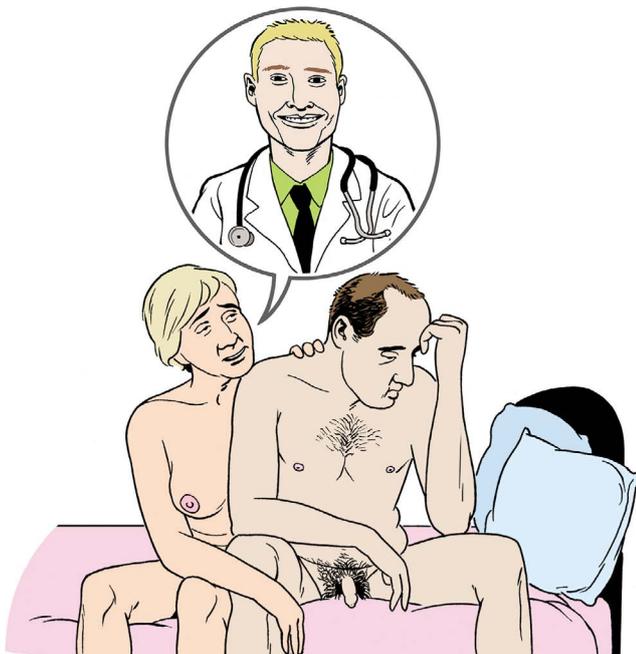

- pee coming out before you can get to the toilet.

Some of the less common symptoms of prostate cancer are:

- pain when you pee

- pain when you come during sex (ejaculate)

- blood in your pee

- pain in your back, hips, or pelvis.

Your pelvis is the large bone at the bottom of your back. It connects your spine to your legs.

These symptoms can be caused by other things. But it is best to get checked by your doctor.

The doctor will ask you about your symptoms and take a sample of your blood.

They may also check if your prostate is bigger than normal. To do this they will feel inside your bottom.

You may have to have more tests. This will depend on your results.
